THE CANADIAN CLUB OF HARVARD UNIVERSITY

THE Canadian Club of Harvard University is an organization composed mainly of members of the University who have been born in the Dominion of Canada; its membership is, however, open to all persons who are or have been British subjects and who are or have been members of any department of Harvard University. Its objects are the promotion of social intercourse among its members and the furtherance of the interests of Harvard University in the different parts of the British Empire and more especially in Canada. In pursuance of the former aim, regular monthly meetings of a social nature are held at which the members coming from various parts of the Dominion and other divisions of the Empire are brought together. At these meetings addresses are frequently given by Canadians prominent in public life, the list of those who have favored the Club in this way during recent years including Hon. Edward Blake, Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., Sir Frederick Borden, Hon. J. W. Longley, and many others. The Club aims to further the interests of Harvard in Canada by placing at the disposal of Canadian students such information regarding the work and advantages of the University as may serve to guide them in their choice of an educational institution. Canadians and other British subjects coming to Harvard will be cordially welcomed by the Club, and it is desirable that, prior to their arrival, such should notify the Secretary of the Canadian Club so that they may be afforded any advice, assistance, or information which they may desire. The Secretary will also be glad to put into communication with the proper University authorities any one who desires detailed information concerning any department of study at Harvard.

The following summary, though necessarily very condensed, is designed to give a general idea of the superior equipment and great resources of the foremost educational institution in America.

Harvard University comprises the following administrative units: Harvard College; The Lawrence Scientific School; The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences; The Divinity School; The Medical School; The Law School; The Dental School; The Bussey Institution (a school of agriculture); and the Summer Schools of Arts and Sciences, Divinity, and Medicine. Radcliffe College, — an institution offering higher education to women, — although not an integral part of Harvard University, is very closely connected with it, since all the instruction therein is given by members of the Harvard staff.

Harvard College. — Harvard College, the oldest and largest department of the University, offers an elective course for undergraduates in arts, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Normally the course of study extends over four years, but earnest students find it possible to complete the requirements for the degree in three and one-half or even in three years. Admission to Harvard College is by examinations, which are held in June and September of each year. Students who have spent one or more years in attendance at any recognized Canadian college or university will be credited at Harvard with partial fulfilment of the requirements for graduation. The exact amount of such credit is determined upon the merits of each individual case by a "Committee on Admission from Other Colleges," and may be ascertained by application to the Chairman of this Committee. Harvard College offers the advantages of a free elective system of studies affording opportunities for specialization, superior library and laboratory facilities, together with that wide scope for the development of intellectual, social and athletic tastes which result from membership in a student body comprising upwards of two thousand young men drawn from the best homes of the United States.

The Lawrence Scientific School. — The Lawrence Scientific School offers a wide range of studies in general science and the special sciences, leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Science, Mining Engineer, and Metallurgical Engineer. The requirements for admission are essentially identical with those for admission to Harvard College, and work done in the scientific departments of Canadian colleges and universities may be credited towards the degree. The School affords excellent facilities for the study of General Science, Civil Engineering, Mechanical, Electrical and Mining Engineering, Architecture, Landscape Architecture and Forestry, Chemistry, Anatomy and Physiology, Geology, and Biology. It has recently come into possession of large financial resources which will soon enable Harvard to afford facilities for scientific training surpassed by no other institution in the country.

The Graduate School. — The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences affords post-graduate instruction in courses which lead to the degrees of Master of Arts (A.M.); Master of Science (S.M.); Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.); and Doctor of Science (S.D.). Graduates of colleges or scientific schools of good standing may be admitted to the Graduate School on application as candidates for these degrees. The degrees of A.M. and S.M. are ordinarily attainable after one year of residence and study at Harvard; the degrees of Ph.D. and S.D. are awarded only after two or more years of post-graduate study, at least one of which must be spent in Cambridge. These latter degrees, however, demand for their award maturity of scholarship and high attainments in some special branch of learning. The Graduate School offers unsurpassed opportunities for research work in all its departments, with every assistance and encouragement to scholarly specialization. In each department of study a number of courses "primarily for graduates" are offered annually. Both in its scope and method this School is adapted to the highest service of those who look towards collegiate teaching as a profession.

The Divinity School. — The Divinity School offers a three years' course leading to the degree of S.T.B. Only graduates of recognized colleges are, ordinarily, admitted as candidates for this degree. The Constitution of the School prescribes that "every encouragement be given to the serious, impartial, and unbiassed investigation of Christian truth, and that no assent to the peculiarities of any denomination of Christians shall be required either of the instructors or students." The administration of the School is carefully conformed to this principle, various denominations being represented in its Faculty and among its students. The aim is to maintain a School in which all matters connected with Theology are studied in a spirit as free as that in which Philosophy, History, and Literature are studied in the Graduate School. At the same time special attention is given to preparation for the practical work of the ministry.

The Medical School. — The Medical School offers a four years' course leading to the degree of M.D., as well as special courses for graduate and undergraduate students in Medicine. Only graduates in Arts or Science of recognized colleges or scientific schools are, as a rule, admitted as students in regular standing. The Medical School has just been provided with a new and magnificent set of buildings, in all of which the most complete and modern equipment for medical and surgical instruction and investigation is being installed. It is confidently expected that the School will soon become, in its new quarters, the foremost institution of its kind in America. The large hospitals of Boston offer superior advantages for clinical instruction and practice. Graduates of the Harvard Medical School have found little difficulty in satisfying the requirements imposed by the respective Medical Councils of the various Canadian Provinces.

The Law School. — The Harvard Law School is without doubt the leading institution of its kind in America, if not in the world. The eminent English jurist, Professor A. V. Dicey, declared, after an investigation of its methods and equipment: "It will be admitted by every competent judge that nowhere throughout America is law taught so thoroughly as at Harvard."* And Hon. James Bryce, M.P., the distinguished author of the "Holy Roman Empire" and "The American Commonwealth," has expressed in his writings substantially the same opinion.

In the Harvard Law School a three years' course in common law leads to the degree of LL.B., but only graduates of recognized colleges are admitted to candidacy. The majority of Canadian colleges and universities have been accorded this recognition.

A leading feature of the School is its instruction in the principles of the common law by means of the "case-law system." Another feature is its excellent organization of a system of club courts for the argument of cases. The School is one of the largest of its kind; the number of students in attendance during the session 1904–05 being over 750. It is of interest to note that several of the foremost jurists in Canada have been numbered among the graduates of the Harvard Law School.

The Dental School. — In the Dental School is offered a course leading to the degree of Doctor of Dental Medicine extending over three years. In addition to the superior curriculum the School affords its students exceptional advantages for clinical instruction in the Dental Hospital and unsurpassed advantages in the practice of operative dentistry. The stress which is laid on practical work is one of the distinguishing characteristics of the School. Candidates for admission who hold a degree in letters, science, or medicine from a recognized college or scientific school are admitted without examination. All other candidates must pass examinations for admission.

The Bussey Institution. — Systematic instruction in Agriculture and Horticulture, as well as in Forestry, is given in the Bussey Institution. Students completing the courses required are entitled to the degree of Bachelor of Agricultural Science.

The Summer Schools. — In the three Faculties of Arts and Sciences, Divinity, and Medicine, summer courses of instruction are offered. Many of the individual courses may, subject to certain limitations, be counted towards fulfilment of the requirements for a degree in the respective Schools. The work of the Summer Schools ordinarily extends over a period of six weeks, beginning early in July of each year. Instruction is given, almost exclusively, by members of the teaching staff of Harvard University, and those attending the Schools have all the advantages of the University libraries, laboratories, etc.

Radcliffe College. — As the University is not co-educational, instruction in Arts and Sciences is afforded to women in Radcliffe College. Elective courses for undergraduates lead to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and for graduates to the degree of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy. The requirements for entrance are identical with those in Harvard College and the requirements for the different degrees are the same. Advanced students in Radcliffe College are admitted to many of the advanced courses in the Graduate School of the University.

Lectures, Entertainments, etc. — In addition to the regular courses offered by the University, a large number of short series of lectures and of single lectures are offered from time to time by distinguished scholars. These are open to all members of the University. Frequent musical and other entertainments of the highest character serve to enhance the pleasure of life in the Harvard circle.

Libraries. — The University Library in Gore Hall comprises a magnificent collection of over half a million volumes. It is particularly rich in materials for historical investigation. Of especial interest to Canadians is the extensive collection of works relating to the history of Canada, bequeathed to the Library by Francis Parkman. In addition to the University Library, there are special libraries in connection with the various schools, that of the Law School, which Professor Dicey has described as "the noblest collection of English law books in the world," being worthy of special emphasis. In addition, a number of the various departments in the College and Graduate School have their own special libraries, provided with several copies of every book likely be called into frequent use by students.

Students find, moreover, no difficulty in obtaining the use of books in the Boston Public Library, — one of the largest and best equipped municipal libraries in the United States, — and in the many smaller libraries in Boston.

Clubs, Associations, etc. — All members of the University are eligible to membership in the Harvard Union, which is the centre of student social life in Cambridge. The Union provides a handsome Club House in close proximity to the College Yard, furnished with all the accessories of a first class social club. The building contains a dining hall, café, library, reading-rooms, billiard-rooms, etc. It is the rendezvous of the various smaller social organizations of the college.

In addition there are a large number of smaller associations, providing in various ways for the social or intellectual interests of their members.

Rooms. — Rooms may be had in any of a number of dormitories owned by the University, or in privately owned dormitories, or in private houses. With a few exceptions (in Divinity Hall and Conant Hall) all dormitory rooms are unfurnished. The prices of these rooms range from $50 per year upwards; furnished rooms may be had in private houses at from $75 upwards. As the more desirable rooms are in early demand, all applications for rooms in dormitories owned by the University should be made to the Bursar early.

Board. — About twelve hundred students board in the great dining room of Memorial Hall. Meals are to be had partly on the European and partly on the American plan, the cost being from $3.50 to $5.00 per week. Over a thousand students are accommodated in Randall Hall, where meals are served à la carte at cost, making it possible to obtain board at from $3.00 to $4.00 a week. In addition numbers are provided for in the dining hall of the Union; at various small clubs; in the neighboring restaurants, and in private houses.

Applications for membership in the dining organizations should be addressed to the auditors of the Harvard Dining Association at Memorial Hall and of the Randall Dining Association at Randall Hall, respectively.

The Harvard Coöperative Society. — The Harvard Coöperative Society maintains a commodious store in the immediate vicinity of the University. All students' requisites, such as furniture, clothes, books, stationery, etc., can be purchased at an approximation to cost. Special facilities are afforded for the purchase of goods on credit. The management of this store is entirely in the hands of members of the University, any one of whom can become a participant on payment of $1.00. From humble beginnings the Harvard Coöperative Society has grown to be one of the largest mercantile concerns in Cambridge, owning a fine business block and carrying an immense stock in its various departments.

Tuition, Expenses, etc. — The tuition fees in all departments of the University (except the Summer Schools) range from $150 to $200 per session. This amount is payable semi-annually in advance. The total annual expenses of a student depend so much upon individual habits and tastes that no exact estimate of reasonable expenditure can be offered. Men at Harvard spend all the way from $400 to $5000 per session. The expenses of a student of economical habits need not, however, exceed $500 or at most $600 per session.

Scholarships, Aid, etc. — In all departments of the University considerable sums of money are annually available for the assistance of deserving students. Most of this aid is granted in the form of fellowships and scholarships, in amounts varying from $50 to $500 or more per year. Freshmen in the College and Scientific School are not, ordinarily, awarded scholarships during their first year, but assistance may be given them out of the Price Greenleaf Fund at the discretion of the authorities. After a year of attendance the award will depend on the character of a student's scholarship and industry as shown by his work. In the Graduate School scholarships may be, and frequently are, awarded to applicants before attendance at Harvard. Applications should be made as early as March 15 of the year in which the candidate expects to enter, and should be accompanied by testimonials, written or printed work, or by any other evidence which will enable the authorities to judge the applicant's worth and capabilities. Men who have attained high rank in Canadian colleges have hitherto been very generously treated in the awards of scholarships at Harvard.

Opportunities for Outside Work. — Numerous opportunities for outside earnings exist in Cambridge and Boston, but are not usually available unless a student has been a year in attendance at the University and has become familiar with various local conditions. Many graduate students find opportunities in tutoring, etc. In general, a student ought not to look to this source for substantial support during his first year of attendance; but if he maintains a high rank during his initial year at Harvard financial difficulties usually solve themselves.

Of the students in the Graduate School a considerable number are annually employed as assistants, etc., in the larger undergraduate courses, as proctors in the dormitories, etc. These posts are not ordinarily available to men until they have been a year in attendance. A number of prizes are, however, awarded each year for excellence in public speaking, essays, etc., without any restrictions as to previous attendance.

The University maintains a number of Travelling Fellowships, the income of which amounts to from $450 to $1000 per year. These are awarded for terms of one or two years to distinguished students, who have been in residence at Harvard for one or more years, to enable them to continue their studies abroad. During the past ten years a goodly number of these have been awarded to Canadians.

Detailed Information. — Detailed information on any matter relating to the University will be found in the different publications issued during each year. These comprise the Annual Catalogue; the announcements of the various schools; the bulletins of the various departments of study in each school; together with various publications on the cost of living at Harvard, the religious activities, the opportunities for outside work, etc. Any of these publications may be had by application to the proper authority. The authority in each case is as follows: —

For all information regarding Harvard College, address The Secretary of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, 5 University Hall, Cambridge.

The Lawrence Scientific School: The Secretary of the Lawrence Scientific School, 16 University Hall, Cambridge.

The Graduate School: The Dean of the Graduate School, 10 University Hall, Cambridge.

The Medical School: The Dean of the Harvard Medical School, 688 Boylston Street, Boston.

Radcliffe College: The Secretary of Radcliffe College, Cambridge.

The Summer Schools: Regarding the Summer School of Arts and Sciences: the Clerk of the Summer School, 16 University Hall, Cambridge; regarding the Summer Schools of Divinity and Medicine: the Deans of the respective Schools.

Inquiries regarding rooms in the University dormitories should be addressed to the Bursar of Harvard University, Dane Hall, Cambridge.

The Secretary of the Canadian Club will be glad to see that any inquiries addressed to him are handed over to the proper academic authority, or to give such information as he can regarding any matter not contained in the regular publications.

Former members of the Harvard Canadian Club, and all Harvard Alumni residing in Canada or in the other parts of the Empire, are earnestly desired to forward to the Secretary of the Club the names of any persons in their neighborhood who are contemplating attendance at an American college or university, in order that the advantages of Harvard may be brought to their attention.

On the roll of Harvard Alumni will be found many men who have achieved high distinction in the political and professional circles of Canada. Among the Loyalists who left the Eastern States at the close of the Revolutionary War to become pioneers in the Canadian provinces were a goodly number of the sons of Harvard College. Many of these kept up their connection with their Alma Mater by sending their sons and grandsons thither; and for a full century — as the appended list shows — the University has numbered among its students an increasing number of young Canadians. It may well be doubted whether any institution of higher education in Canada can boast of a body of such distinguished Alumni in proportion to its numbers as may be found among Canadians who have attended Harvard University. Among the more recent names may be mentioned those of Sir Frederick W. Borden, Minister of Militia and Defence; Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, formerly Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Senator W. B. Almon; Senator Primrose; Mr. Justice Alwyn; T. B. Flint, M.P.; Mr. W. J. Tupper, of Winnipeg; Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, Deputy Minister of Labor; Dr. Reginald A. Daly, of the Geological Survey; Hon. A. S. White, formerly Attorney-

General of New Brunswick; Judge Henry and Mr. W. B. Ritchie, K.C., of Halifax; Mr. George H. Perley, M.P., of Ottawa; Professors Charles W. Colby and A. J. Eaton, of McGill; Professor Hume, of Toronto University; Professors McLay and Cohoe, of MacMaster University; Professor Raymond, of the University of New Brunswick; Professor Tufts, of Acadia; Professors W. M. Tweedie and Archibald, of Mount Allison College; Professor Blewett, of Wesleyan College, Winnipeg; and many others.

A considerable number of Canadians coming to Harvard have also remained in the United States or have gone to other lands to fill positions procured for them by Harvard influence. Among the number who have become prominent in educational life in various parts of the Republic may be mentioned Professors F. C. de Sumichrast and S. M. Macvane; Assistant Professors Schofield and Jeffrey; Drs. Benjamin Rand, W. B. Munro, and K. G. T. Webster, of Harvard University; Mr. Montague Chamberlain, formerly Secretary of the Lawrence Scientific School; Professors Neilson, of Columbia University, Locke and Campbell, of Chicago University, McDougall, of New York University; Professor Nicholson, of Wesleyan University (Conn.); Professor Ganong, of Smith College; Professor Trenholme, of the University of Missouri; Dr. Neville, of the University of Illinois; Dr. J. Mackintosh Bell (now State Geologist of New Zealand); Mr. J. Macdonald Oxley, of New York; and very many others prominent especially in professional and mercantile circles.

The following is a list of the present members of the Harvard Canadian Club and of the Canadians who have studied at Harvard during the past century, 1805–1905. The latter has been compiled by members of the Harvard Canadian Club from the University records, and an earnest endeavor has been made to have it as complete as possible. The Secretary of the Club will be glad to have his attention called to any inaccuracies or omissions in the list in order that corrections may be made in later editions. The address given is in each case that of the student at the time of his admission to Harvard; the dates refer to the year of graduation or last year of attendance. The departments of study are also given, and where a student attended more than one department of the University, the last department only is given.
